(E) Better sorry than shunk

Here is an English sentence with a nonsense verb in it (in italics):

"After the monster had shunk its prey, it dragged it back into the cave."

EI. Fill in the other forms of this verb in the following sentences:

'She used to	groundhogs). -
"Now she	possums for a living."
"When she was i	in Eugene she	thirty-three possums in one day.'
Then she took i	us possum-	in the Cascades."

E2. Are there any other possible solutions to this problem? Please give all solutions, sorted by how likely they are correct, and explain your answer.